SORRY FOR IT

The Toronto News "would welcome" a change of government at Ottawa, "but not by an alliance with the Nationalists." It would be wiser, it says, "to have the true interests of the Conservative party of the Dominion and of the Empire that a Nationalist group should have power in the House of Commons to debate the policy of such parties and practically to determine the relations between the Dominion and the Mother country and drive us on towards independence." If the News had expressed these sentiments on the attention of its numerous readers four years ago, when the alliance between it might have saved its party from the humiliating position of its attachment to it. It was only when the wicked gift papers began to publish the fact that the News had been "framed" by the Tories, that the News suddenly began to protest against one being made. Like Mr. Borden it seems to have been content to accept the assistance of Mr. Bourassa so long as it was not called on to countenance him in the House of Commons speaking provinces as an associate. Even now it declines to admit the fact that the News has been "framed" by the Tories, or to even ensure the moral presence of making one. It is only when the Tories are in the position of the manœuvre, and it only because money on this score when letters like the following began to arrive:—

To the Editor of the News:—Cut the Conservative party loose from Bourassa and we are done for. Otherwise it will be that Laurier has saved Canada to the Empire. Surely we must see Bourassa released—Conservative.
November 1, 1910.

Mr. Bourassa, even in the hour of prospective triumph, is found to be very dangerous to the Empire. For that reason, and on that ground alone, the News objects to the "alliance." Its objection is based, not on sound principle, and no doubt it gathers strength from the knowledge that it is too late to avoid the consequences. It is too late to have the celebration of the victory, marked by the unpleasant thought that the same was not worth the candle, but those who make an alliance must assume the responsibility of acknowledging their friends in public. If they make their appearance at an important moment, or if their value or devotion is called in some other people approve of that, it is merely an incident in the game and must make the rest of it. Let the News and all the other leading organs of the party have the pleasure of alliance with Mr. Bourassa. Let them force with their own hands to join forces after they have been competing for years, and still make the fact of their co-operation seem to be more harmful than helpful. A rope is often sorry that it is about to be named, but his regret does not go far to show that he was always a rope. If Bourassa, nor does it do anything to make his crime. Mr. Jordan endorsed on his Nationalist-Conservative alliance with the apparent acquiescence of the party press, nor were there any protest or disagreement from the papers while the rope seemed likely to work only good to the party he led. Nor is there yet from them a proposal that the alliance should be broken off. So far they are merely regaining on the book they led.

That they find the experience unpleasant in the making clear enough. Nor perhaps do they either much content from the reflection that they are not to easily extricate themselves from an unhappy position. Academic says on the inadvisability of getting into such predicament will do nothing either to lessen their pain or to secure their release. They are suffering not from an abstract principle, but from an unpleasant fact. They chose to put cunning before principle, to employ means that were respectable and decent; and they are getting precisely what they deserve. They planned to deceive others and that they have only misled themselves. Perhaps they may gain some philosophical consolation by resolving to do their worst. The practical and honest, however, is to break off the alliance that is being found to be unprofitable, and to continue the public work this has been done. Until Mr. Jordan and his counselors do this they must not lose their tempers when the reflection is called to their ally, not to complete the calling of attention to it until some time friends.

The revised plan prepared by the P. B. committee proposes that the rails shall cross Jasper Avenue eight feet below the street level. To carry the street through a subway would be under that would be a pretty costly job, for either the grade would have to be made unduly steep or the rails raised, and in the latter case the better event the damage done to property and which the city has to pay for would be correspondingly increased. And when it is considered that the bridge would be anything but satisfactory or unimproved, it should not be so costly to carry the roadway over the tracks on a bridge, which would certainly be more desirable from every standpoint. As the plans submitted by the company when the arrangement was first negotiated showed the trucks crossing the street about on the level it is a fair proportion that they should put up a bridge, proportion of the extra cost of the bridge made necessary by the change in their plans, suggesting the bridge would cost more than the subway. The company should certainly be willing to contribute as much toward the cost of a bridge as they are bound by the agreement to pay toward the cost of a subway—and no doubt would be at any rate. It is worth while, finding out what a bridge would cost and also to get estimates of the cost of a subway under the depressed tracks.

The Toronto Telegram thinks the real sentiment of the Irish people toward the Empire is embodied in the attitude of its numerous leaders of a pessimistic home-runder: "We'll never set home rule till the day comes, when, if we don't get 'france' join in to make England give it to us; and even then couldn't make 'her do it for us, we've a great many'."

IN LIGHTER VEIN

Fluogee Blaster—Father (to his son who has fallen in love with a young rascal). "You've drunk half of it on the way." Son: "Yes, father, you may see it in the light." "Do you ever think, George, that you and her voice was soft when she said 'I love you'?" "Yes, indeed. It's three-quarters full up to date along to catch the eye, and she said 'I love you' in a low, reliable voice to get the full effect."

"I don't believe I ever do," admitted George, but I will if you will."

"Yes," she went on, going up into his face. "When one is truly and wholly happy, George, there is little to divide laughter from tears." "Well, that's a fact," assented George, but "I never thought of it before. After all, there's nothing left to me."

Puck—Willie: So the play will appeal to all classes? Dad: Yes, indeed. It's three-quarters full up to date along to catch the eye, and she said 'I love you' in a low, reliable voice to get the full effect."

Judge—Patient: So you want the operation? Dad: Yes, indeed. It's three-quarters full up to date along to catch the eye, and she said 'I love you' in a low, reliable voice to get the full effect."

Washington Star—"That horse of yours looks terribly run down." "Yep," replied Uncle R. "I'm afraid he's a little bit run down." "Well, it's kind of comical to have him around. As long as I've got him, I'll keep him, and I'll make sure his heir's behind in a horse trade."

Smart Bert—"Here," said the editor, "you use too many words. You say, 'I was poor, but honest.' You have only to say that he was honest."

"Thank you, sir," he went on without money and without friends." "Simplicity was his without money."

Puck—Lady: Did that last ticket I bought for the opera? "Yes, indeed. It's three-quarters full up to date along to catch the eye, and she said 'I love you' in a low, reliable voice to get the full effect."

Chicago Tribune—Upgradation "What's the meaning of this word 'modern'?" "Alum—'I haven't' looked it up. It's word I never saw, anyway, it sounds like swearing."

GREATEST CURE FOR RHEUMATISM IS "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

"I Honestly Believe It," says Mr. Mills

Knowlton, P.Q., Oct. 12th, 1909.
For many years I suffered from severe Rheumatism and the attacks were very distressing and prevented me from doing my ordinary work.
I tried many remedies and physicians' treatments but nothing seemed to do me much good, and I was becoming very anxious for I would become a permanent cripple from Rheumatism.
I tried "Fruit-a-Tives" and this medicine cured me. I am now well and I honestly believe that "Fruit-a-Tives" is the greatest Rheumatism Cure in the world.

E. E. MILLS, Asst. P.M., Knowlton, Que.

"Fruit-a-Tives" not only strengthens and builds the kidneys—but also regulates the bowels, improves the action of the skin—and keeps the blood pure and rich with iron and uric acid which causes Rheumatism.
"Fruit-a-Tives"—the great fruit medicine—has had sales of $250,000 in 1909, for $2.00 trial size, 25c; or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-Tives Limited, Ottawa.
